

Online publishing of student theses (e.g. bachelor and master theses)

The institutional repository Refubium provides students of the Freie Universität with the possibility to publish their final theses electronically online without any charge. The uploaded theses are available in a designated part of Refubium and can be searched and downloaded online. The basis of this publishing process is a publishing contract that the respective student and the University Library agree upon online. All rights remain with the author.

The official regulations of the departments and faculties of the Freie Universität regarding final exams and theses remain unaffected by this online publishing process. (See <https://www.fu-berlin.de/en/studium/studienorganisation/pruefung/index.html>).

Starting this winter semester 2019/2020, the branch libraries of the FU library system will stop archiving student theses in paper form. If you want to make sure that the library archives your thesis and makes it available to the general public please contact the University Library to find out more about our publishing service.

In order to publish a bachelor thesis on Refubium, students will need the recommendation of their academic supervisor. This can be done by e-mail, please contact the editorial staff of Refubium at the University Library (edocs@ub.fu-berlin.de).
